The future is now for Enrique

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The Indians are counting on Enrique Wilson to be a part of their future.

That future could be a lot sooner than they thought.

If Omar Vizquel's shoulder problems only keep him out of action for a short period of time, the Indians will go with Tony Fernandez at shortstop with Julio Franco and a cast of several at second. If Vizquel is out for an extended period, that thinking could change.

That's where Wilson comes in. There's a chance he could be the regular shortstop at some point during the season if Vizquel's injury is serious.

"The way Enrique Wilson has played I'm not sure he couldn't fill in at short until Omar is ready," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said.

"I don't know right now what's going to happen," said Wilson. "If Vizquel is hurt, I could make the team and play two weeks or until he comes back."

Infield coach Johnny Goryl has worked in the Indians' player development system since 1988. He has seen plenty of Wilson since he joined the organization in 1994.

"Enrique is very agile," said Goryl. "He has shown a tremendous amount of range and he has a very strong arm. I don't think there's any question he's ready to play in the big leagues right now."

Wilson has already made several good plays during the exhibition games. One came Wednesday night against Detroit when he fielded a ground ball at normal depth at short and threw out the speedy Vince Coleman, who was trying to score from third.

"When I caught the ball I saw the runner stop and then go," he said. "When I saw that, I threw to the plate."

Wilson, 21, was acquired in a trade that didn't get much attention at the time. On Feb. 21, 1994, the Indians sent Shawn Bryant, a minor-league left-hander to Minnesota for Wilson. Goryl credits the Indians' scouts for the deal.

"We had our choice of four or five minor-leaguers and it was recommended we take Enrique," he said. "He was only 18 years old, but he had shown some tools. To say he would turn out like this, we didn't know that."

Wilson, a switch-hitter, batted .279 at Class A Columbus in 1994. He hit .267, drove in 52 runs and stole 18 bases at Class A Kingston in 1995. He followed that by hitting .304 with 50 RBIs and 23 steals at Class AA Canton-Akron last year. He made 28 errors at short.

Olmsted Falls stays alive

Bulldogs survive OT

Roger Negin
The Chronicle-Telegram

TOLEDO—Tim Schaefer and John Storey wouldn't let Olmsted Falls die.

When things couldn't have looked more bleak, the Bulldog captains rallied their teammates to a 51-50 boys basketball overtime victory over Bellevue in the Division II regional semifinals Thursday night.

It was the 6-foot-8 Schaefer who sank the game-winning shot with four seconds left in the extra session.

The pass came from Storey, who had, a minute earlier, put Falls in front 49-48 with a 3-point shot.

Bellevue, 22-3, tied the game with 21.1 seconds on the clock when David Falknor made two free throws.

The Bulldogs ran the time down to 14.6 seconds before calling timeout and then got the ball into Schaefer for the winning play.

Now 23-1, Falls advances to Saturday's 3 p.m. championship game against Cleveland Benedictine (20-5), somewhat of an irony because those two schools met in the first round of the football playoffs.

Benedictine won that one and went on to capture the state championship.

"I'm sure our football players will take a great interest in that one," said Falls coach Pat Donahue, a winner here for the first time in three successive tries.

Storey, the basketball team's point guard, also quarterbacked the football team.

One minute into the second half, it looked as though the basketball season was about to end for the Bulldogs.

Bellevue came out roaring. The Redmen sank 6 of 11 shots in the first quarter, including 5 of 8 3-pointers, then sank their first two shots in the second.

They led 30-20 at halftime, then scored two quick ones to start the second half, giving them a 34-20 lead.

"Sure doubt starts to creep into your mind," said Storey. "They were pounding us. But we called a timeout and he (Donahue) got in our face. We had to pick up our intensity."

"We knew what we wanted to do. If we could swing the ball, we could get it inside."

That was part of the Olmsted Falls' turnaround: less size on the floor, more quickness, more pressure and more aggressive play.

"We knew we'd have to get more pressure," said Donahue.

Warriors trip up Cavs in overtime

Donyell Marshall sparks GS with career-high 30 points

Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Donyell Marshall figured to have another game like this some day.

"If there is one thing you know he can do," Cleveland coach Mike Fratello said, "you know he can make shots when he is facing the basket, and he made shots facing the basket."

Fratello praised Marshall and took a dig at his own team's defensive effort following Golden State's 101-95 overtime victory. Marshall, a bust for most of his NBA career, tied a career-high with 30 points on 11-for-15 shooting.

"I knew I was going to play a lot, so I was definitely relaxed," Marshall said. "After the first couple of shots fell for me, I got in a good rhythm. When I had the opportunity to shoot it, I did."

With only nine healthy players in uniform and Joe Smith gone by the second half, Marshall more than tripled his minutes-per-game average.

"He's been working his tail off in practice," Warriors coach Rick Adelman said. "He had a huge game for us at a time that we really needed it from him."

Marshall, the fourth pick in the 1994 NBA draft by Minnesota, signed an 8-year, $42.6 million contract with the Timberwolves. He had a 30-point game in the second week of his rookie season, then was traded to the Warriors early in 1995, before his rookie season even ended.

His former teammate at Connecticut, Cleveland's Donny Marshall, was not surprised.

"A lot of people say he got all that money and isn't doing anything," Cleveland's Marshall said, "but I've spent two seasons standing up for him and telling other players he can play."

READY TO FIGHT: Rebecca "Bam-Bam" Shaw is ready for her debut in Toughwoman boxing tonight in Parma.

She's a tough woman

Paul Heyse
The Chronicle-Telegram

When Becky "Bam-Bam" Shaw decided she wanted to take up boxing, she did so with the same enthusiasm and determination she brings to all challenges.

Unfortunately for her, not everyone else was quite so thrilled about her latest hobby.

"I've always had an interest in boxing," said Shaw, a 1975 Berea High School graduate and former prep swimmer. "It took me seven to eight months to find a trainer. I was thrown out of every place. Nobody wanted to hear about it. That made me more determined."

Shaw finally found a trainer and tonight she steps into the ring against an opponent for the first time. And not just any opponent. Sometime around 9:30 or 10 p.m. at Roller World in Parma, she'll stand face-to-face with Tina "T" Green of Cleveland, the defending champion in the third annual Cleveland Toughwoman Contest.

Even though she has trained for a year, Shaw's introduction to the Sweet Science should be an eye-opening — or closing — one.
