

Tribe sells out regular season

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Not all of the sports news out of Cleveland these days is bad.

The Indians' 1996 regular season at 42,000-seat Jacobs Field is a sellout — the first time a major-league baseball team has presold all its tickets for an entire season of 81 home games.

The team sold the last of its tickets Saturday for an April 4 home game with the New York Yankees, the final regular-season game for which tickets were available.

About 7,000 tickets remain for a March 30 exhibition against Pittsburgh, team spokesman Bart Swain said.

The Indians this year ended their regular season with 52 straight home sellouts, plus had eight more at 2-year-old Jacobs Field during the American League playoffs and World Series. With next year's sellouts, Cleveland now has sold out 133 consecutive regular-season games — shattering the previous record of 65 held by the Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles' streak ran from May 23, 1992, the first year of Oriole Park at Camden Yards, until April 20, 1993.

Cleveland defeated Boston and Seattle to win the AL championship but lost to the Atlanta Braves in a six-game World Series.

Indians ticket prices range from $6 to $21. With next year's sellouts — and assuming the team withholds some tickets for players and other complimentary uses — that would amount to a guaranteed paid attendance of about 3.3 million.

EC

bing an 18-16 halftime lead, the Panthers were 7-of-22 (32 percent) from the field while the Middles were 6-of-27 (22 percent).

The Panthers came to life, however, in the second half as Zaborniak scored seven of his 11 points and senior Kevin Fritz scored eight of his 10 points to spark the Panthers.

"Coming out, the (opening night) nervousness was gone, but the intensity was still there," said Zaborniak. "Coach fired us up in the locker room beforehand, gave us a little talk about tradition. We came out, hustled, executed and took over from there."

From the field, EC converted 20-of-47 (43 percent) while Midview was 14-of-45 (31 percent).

"We're still feeling our way as coaches as far as different combinations of players," said Mike Kearns, Elyria Catholic coach. "We're struggling a little, we just have to hang in there and keep working and staying positive. I think we have good kids with a good attitude."

Senior Cory Dennis was the lone bright spot to Midview's scoring blues, netting 11.

"I thought we took some decent shots, but nothing went in. Nothing at all went in," said Ray Verba, Midview coach. "I thought we did a great job on defense. Our intensity was great. We play two decent teams (Elyria West and EC) and held them each under 50 points, but it doesn't do you any good when you only score 36 yourself."

In the junior varsity game, Kevin Miglich's nine points weren't enough as Midview prevailed 37-27.

Elyria Catholic returns to action Friday at Cleveland Central Catholic. Midview hosts Wellington the same night.

BUCKEYES

From B1

"We would do a good job on defense, make them take a shot they didn't want but then we would get boxed out and they would put it back in. But of course 24 turnovers and shooting 35 percent is not going to win many games either."

The Buckeyes must be playing good defense. Their three opponents are averaging below 40 percent from the field. Saturday Ohio State hit 45 percent of its shots.

As a senior, Yudit is careful not to get too excited about his team's 3-0 start.

"We've got a long way to go. Not to take anything away from the teams we have played, but they're not of the caliber and intensity of the Big Ten. We just need to keep improving to be ready in January."

a stepping stone for us to say: "Whoever's on the court, we can beat anybody."

P.J. Brown added 16 and Edwards 11 for New Jersey, which beat Cleveland on the boards 61-39. Chris Mills had 17 for the Cavaliers, while Bobby Phills added 15 and Dan Majerle 13.

"Every time you play a team that is undermanned, such as they were, you know they are going to come out and give their all," Cavaliers center Michael Cage said. "Especially with their home record, it's going to be tough to beat them. We just couldn't get anything going the last few minutes of the game."

Majerle's driving layup gave the Cavaliers a 73-66 lead with 5:07 to play, but the Nets scored 13 of the next 15 points, tying the game at 75 on a jumper by Brown. Edwards gave New Jersey its first lead with his jumper and Childs and Williams stretched the lead to 79-75 with free throws with nine seconds left.

A 3-pointer by Phills with less than a second left closed out the scoring.

Cleveland used a 17-2 spurt at the end of the first half to open a 50-35 lead, and it stretched the advantage to 17 early in the second half before the Nets rallied.

"We let them keep hanging around all night," Cavaliers forward Danny Ferry said. "If you let a team do that, especially a team that rebounds as well as them, you are just asking for trouble. We really have no one to blame but ourselves."

center, had 16 points, half of them coming at the foul line where he was a perfect eight of eight. Matt Tabar added 15, all coming from 3-point range. Tim Matus had 11 points while Jerome Moore and another 6-8 giant, Nick Neumeister, didn't hurt the cause by playing solid defense.

Daimion Mahone led West's scoring with 12 points, hitting 10 in the third period when West put together its best quarter. However, the Wolverines went right back under Falls' thumb in the final as the Bulldogs won going away with a 17-4 scoring advantage.

"I thought we played well in the third quarter," said Gillam. "We did some things right but we went back to standing around in the fourth quarter. We need to work on our offensive movement. I'm certainly disappointed in the way we played tonight, but not discouraged."

Falls won the junior varsity contest as well, 66-41. Jim Kalemba had 15 for the Bulldogs. Jermele Nolen led the Wolverines with 18.

West will open the home portion of its schedule with Bay Village on Tuesday, while Olmsted Falls begins its bid for Southwestern honors by hosting Amherst on Friday.

inmates of an insane asylum would be appalled.

There is no practical value of such stadiums except to allow the owners to cheat each other.

What separates wealthy teams in the NFL from the poor ones are expensive logos and what they call "club seats."

Income from logos and "club seats" are exempt from the league's traditional 60-40 split of gate receipts with the visiting teams.

This is the most apparent anomaly in the NFL's revenue sharing policy.

Ending this anomaly and sharing all revenue would help close the gap between Jerry Jones' Dallas Cowboys and Modell's struggling Browns.

But Jones would never agree to that, so Modell went to the tax payors. The suckers in Baltimore wrote him a check.

It woke America up. The NFL is making suckers of us all. Who do these NFL owners think they are, the Kings of England?

That's what started the first revolution, more than 200 years ago.
