BOYS DISTRICT BASKETBALL

Mustangs' Skully uses split-second timing to stop Eagles

By E.L. ROGERS
PLAIN DEALER REPORTER

DIVISION I
STRONGSVILLE	49
ST. EDWARD	47

Just call Nic Skully Mr. Timex.

Any chap who can pull off what he did last night must have a built-in watch in his head.

With the game clock winding down, this Strongsville basketball guard ticked to perfection. No, he did not make the game-winning layup at the buzzer. That honor went to Dave Hutter.

But just wait until you hear about Skully's game-winning assist. Without that beauty of a pass, the Mustangs might not have escaped with a 49-47 win over St. Edward in last night's Division I district final at Midview.

"That play was designed for Skully to penetrate into the lane and read the situation," said Strongsville coach Joe Lynch. "I told Skully to just get the ball and make whatever decision he thought best. He made a great call, didn't he?"

What a wonderful way for Strongsville (20-3) to win its first district title in more than a decade, and what a bummer of a way for St. Edward (15-8) to bow out.

Any time a playoff game is won at the buzzer, the gym will be mixed with bliss and sadness. And what Skully did last night was place sunshine over Mustang fans and a thunderstorm over the Eagles faithful.

"We were trying to contain Skully the whole game," said St. Edward coach Eric Flannery. "On that play, he was able to get the ball up top. You saw what he did with it after that. That's why we wanted the ball out of his hands."

With 24 seconds and the score tied at 47, Strongsville inbounded the ball. After working the ball around with a few passes, it ended up in Skully's hand with about 12 ticks left. Strongsville sent its other four players along the baseline — two in the corner and two along the blocks.

Skully went to work. He was around the top of the key with six seconds left when he made his move. He drove down the lane and jumped. To shoot a running jumper or to pass, that was the question. As Skully leaped into the air, a defender to his left jumped with him. That's when Skully dished the ball to Hutter on the left side of the lane with two seconds left. By the time Hutter's layup fell through the net, only three-tenths of a second remained.

The buzzer sounded, and chaos followed as Mustang fans swarmed the court.

"I knew in the back of my mind how much time was on the clock when I got the ball," Skully said. "When I drove into the lane, I knew there was about two or three seconds left. When I jumped up in the lane, I saw Dave out of the corner of my eye, and then I saw his defender come out at me.

"When I dished it off to him, I was just like 'Put it in, Dave, put it in.' If I had had a good shot, I would've taken it, but I was just as happy dishing the ball off to my teammate."

Hutter was tickled.

"When we set up, I'm always keeping my eye on Nic because I never know what he's going to do," Hutter said. "When he drove down the lane and then he jumped up, I knew he was going to pass the ball to me just because of the way he was looking. I knew he was going to put the ball to me, and there was no way I was going to miss that layup."

Poor St. Edward.

"Did I think Skully was going to shoot the ball in that situation? Yes, I did," Flannery said. "Hey, he made a great decision. The guy has a lot of instinct."

What made matters worse for the Eagles is that they had a chance to set up for a win before Skully's heroics took place. But instead, St. Edward turned the ball over with 30 seconds left.

"I take full blame for that," Flannery said. "Their players did a good job of stepping into the passing lane and knocking the ball off our player's leg."

HOCKEY

Shaker put it all together

By BRANSON WRIGHT
PLAIN DEALER REPORTER

Shaker Heights had the makings of a championship hockey team. The Raiders had talent, speed and experience.

But that was last year, and that club didn't even make it to the state tournament semifinals. The Raiders began this season without three key players from that talented squad: Rashaun Ewing, Matt Shenk, and Mike Perrin.

The writing was on the wall. This was a rebuilding year for the 2000-01 Raiders. So everyone believed.

In was also a rebuilding year in which Shaker Heights overcame injuries and a brief midseason slump to win the Baron Cup Tournament and then defeat No. 1-ranked Padua, 3-1, for the state title. It was the Raiders' first trip to the finals since 1998 and their first title since '93.

The team remained optimistic despite the adversity. "Every year is a rebuilding year," said Shaker Heights coach Mike Bartley. "You're always going to lose a crop of seniors. We just came into the year looking for the right ingredients."

The Raiders were spiced by several players, including Carson Strang, Johnny Dingle and Matt Bartley. But the major component to Shaker Heights' success, especially during the postseason, was goalie Don Koletsky. Koletsky had 29 saves in the title game. He had 120 saves on 127 shots during the tournament run.

"Don came out to play big in every game throughout the tournament," Strang said. "He has the most pressured position. If any other guy on the ice has a bad day, you'll get more shots at [your] goal. If a goalie has a bad night, you lose."

The Raiders' fate during the final period of the championship game rested on Koletsky's shoulders. The score was tied at 1-1 heading into the third period. Every save saved Shaker Heights.

"I had to stay strong," Koletsky said. "I had the mind-set not to allow any more goals. I tried not to think too far ahead. I was just focused on each play."

The team gave Koletsky some breathing room with two third-period goals.

POST TIME

Plain Dealer handicapper Bob "Railbird" Roberts, with $1,000 of company funds tucked in his Racing Forms and track programs, is taking on the pari-mutuel world — 24 hours a day. Not only is he betting the races at Northfield, but simulcasts from tracks around the clock and globe.

TODAY'S PLAYS — Open in the second race at Gulfstream Park with a $5 exacta box, Pine's Angel to Rock Slide. Close in the eighth at the Gulf with $10 to win on Casanova Star. Also take him first and second to all eight rivals with $1 exacta tickets. Total wagered: $36.

24-HOUR BANKROLL UPDATE — The Railbird, who says he never wins on big race days, didn't again yesterday. "I bet and lost $26 on the Florida Derby card at Gulfstream," said Roberts. "Maybe I should bet on weekdays only. Either that, or hide the calendar from the horses I need. If they think Saturday is Wednesday, they might run faster." The kitty, asking for Sunday off, dips to $943.60.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

GULFSTREAM — Monarchos is enjoying his 3-year-old season a lot more than his 2-year-old campaign.

Sweeping past the leaders with an explosive move on the turn for home, Monarchos took control in the stretch and won the $1 million Florida Derby in Hallandale Beach yesterday to stamp himself a top Kentucky Derby contender.

Trainer John Ward predicted his 3-year-old colt would run "extremely well" in the 1⅛-mile race at Gulfstream Park, and Monarchos didn't disappoint. He cruised to a 4½-length victory over Outofthebox, and is unbeaten in three starts this year. As a 2-year-old, Monarchos was winless in two starts.

Sent off as the 7-5 favorite along with entrymate Invisible Ink, Monarchos won his first stakes race and earned $600,000 for owner John Oxley, an Oklahoma oilman who paid $170,000 for the colt.

Invisible Ink finished third, followed by Dream Run, Songandaprayer, It's So Simple, You Know Who, Talk Is Money, City Zip, Turnberry Isle, Cee Dee, Trailthefox and Radical Riley.

The Florida Derby field of 13 was the largest since 1994. Time for the race was 1:49 4-5.
