and a steal.

Crase added a pair of steals and Dodson swished a field goal.

"We gave ourselves an opportunity to win, but we missed lay-ups and foul shots," said Amherst coach Ed Dolinar, whose team hit 5 of 18 (22 percent) from the line. "We created a lot of havoc out there. This game could have gone either way."

Amherst played a zone defense throughout the match to try and shut down Dodson, Vermilion's outside threat, and Middleton, the Sailors' inside power.

"We tried to stop Kristi and Jill," Dolinar said. "They are the backbone of that team."

Amherst is now 3-5 overall, 0-3 in the Southwestern Conference.

Middleton, who set the record at Vermilion for most rebounds in a game (22) two nights ago, finished with a game high 14 rebounds and 16 points. Dodson added 13 points and 8 rebounds while Crase chipped in 11 tallies and 9 caroms.

Kari Lima led Amherst with a team high 12 points and Neal finished with 10 points and 5 boards.

FAST BREAKER — Vermilion's Kristi Middleton runs the pack as she goes in for a layup against Amherst last night.

Olmsted Falls cops Streakball cage title

Sandusky falls to Elida

By RAY DANIELS
Morning Journal Writer

SANDUSKY — In a display of shooting that had both teams over 60 per cent from the floor, Olmsted Falls won the fourth annual Streakball Classic, 90-85, over Barborton last night.

Sandusky fell short on foul shooting in its nip-and-tuck game with Elida, 58-51.

"They played well in the clutch and we didn't," said Sandusky coach John Schlessman. "It was the same as last night. It seemed we tired quickly."

Sandusky scrapped back from a 10-point deficit to tie the game after one and came back to tie near the end of the half, going into halftime down 31-29.

The Streaks came out of the half with a Gregg Peugeot trey and three points from all-tournament player Jason Jones to take a four-point lead, but the Streaks couldn't hold against the towers of Matt Metzger and Chris Cockrell, who got the Elida Bulldogs back in the game. Metzger finished with 10 for Elida and Cockrell added 13.

To open the final stanza, Keith-ran Pickens got one of his 12 to knot the game at 43.

Peugeot hit another trey to bring the Streaks within one and Jones put them up as the two scored 11 and 13 points, respectively for Sandusky.

Jones gave Sandusky its last chance with a transition lay-up to make it 51-50, Sandusky.

But then it was 8 of 10 from the line for Elida and a 58-51 win over Sandusky.

"Tonight we did a good job of giving Sandusky one shot," said Elida coach Chris Adams. "We made the free throws when we needed them."

NHL moved right along in '95

By The Associated Press

The NHL almost shut down because of a lockout by owners, the New Jersey Devils almost left town after winning the Stanley Cup, two Canadian cities lost their teams, and another U.S. city was in danger of losing a team as well.

Money was also the name of the game for players, many of whom did not seem satisfied with the highest salaries in NHL history. Along with contract squabbling, there also was the unloading of high-salary players by teams seeking to cut costs.

As it turned out, in 1995 the bottom line was more important than the blue or red line.

On the ice, the Devils went about their work in a business-like manner in winning their first Cup, using a stingy, defensive style that was reminiscent of the successful Montreal Canadiens teams of old.

It was a season, though, that almost wasn't.

The battle over a new collective bargaining agreement between owners and players was the story of the year in the NHL, resulting in the second shutdown in league history. The first was the players' strike in April 1992.

No games were lost in the players' strike. But plenty were lost this time before the belligerent sides finally settled the issue in January after 103 days. By then, the All-Star game had gone by the boards and the season was reduced to 48 games, just enough in commissioner Gary Bettman's estimation to make it valid.

The playoffs were saved in their entirety, however, and the Devils emerged as champions for the first time in their history. The Devils gave new meaning to the expression "team play" in the playoffs.

A team without many high-profile names, the Devils had a blue-collar approach under Jacques Lemaire and played superb defense with a system called the "neutral-zone trap."

They were surprise champions, to be sure. A mediocre team for most of the season, the Devils weren't given much of a chance to get out of their division, no less win the Cup.

The Devils came together in the playoffs, however, and knocked out Boston, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia before sweeping Detroit in a stunning four-game final. The Red Wings, with the best record during the regular season, had been the favorites to win the Cup.

The Devils' success was soon overshadowed by headlines that owner John McMullen wasn't happy with the team's lease arrangements at the Brendan Byrne Arena, and threatened to move to Nashville. McMullen eventually settled his economic problems, but that was more than could be said for teams in Quebec and Winnipeg.

The Nordiques moved to Colorado because of an economic squeeze there and the city of Winnipeg failed to save its team as well. The Jets announced they would play the 1995-96 season in Winnipeg, then move to another city. The Jets were first ticketed for Minneapolis, but that deal fell through because of a lack of finances. Ultimately, a group in Phoenix announced that it would bring the Jets there for the 1996-97 season.

There was still some question, though, where the Florida Panthers would move. The surprise team in the first few months of the 1995-96 season, the Panthers were up in the standings and also up for sale. Some rumors had the Panthers on their way to Nashville, the town that the Devils stood up.

The Penguins sat on top of the Northeast Division despite the loss of several top players in a salary-cutting move.
